Relevant Projects

Further details for all projects are available on my website and showreel.

Animation Specialist Project:

- A 3D look-development project comprised of a stylised antique shop in an old English street complete with two rigged characters – a self-designed elderly couple.
- Completed using Maya, Zbrush, Substance Painter and Photoshop. This project provided me with experience in time management and self-learning.

Animation Studies Final Essay (First Class):

- Academic paper discussing the advantages and disadvantages of animated propaganda used by the United States government during the second world war.
- Furthered my understanding of research techniques, forming arguments, and understanding the theory and context behind animation.

3D Look Development Project (2:1):

- A modelling project consisting of a medieval tavern and all internal assets.
- Tavern and assets were modelled, textured, and rendered using Maya, allowing me to develop my skills in hard surface modelling and texturing using aiStandards.

Five-Shot "Micro" Movie (2:1):

- Animated a short film set in the aforementioned modelled tavern using character rigs found online. Film was ideated, written, and storyboarded before being animated.
 - Completed using Maya – provided me with knowledge and experience using animation fundamentals such as exaggeration, anticipation, and secondary action.
